

Expanded access refers to the use of an investigational therapy – one which has not yet obtained regulatory approval – for an individual patient outside of a clinical trial setting, whereas the use of investigational therapy in a clinical trial setting involves the collection and assessment of comprehensive safety and efficacy data in clinical trial subjects over a period of time in a well controlled manner, generally to support an application for regulatory approval.

At this time, Axovant believes that participation in one of its clinical trials is the most appropriate way to access its investigational therapies. Therefore, Axovant does not have an expanded access program. If you have questions about participating in our clinical trials, please speak with your physician or visit www.clinicaltrials.gov.

Consistent with the 21st Century Cures Act, Axovant reserves the right to revise this policy at any time.
